Help Kick-Off the countdown to the Holy Name Fall Festival!

There are only six weeks until the Fall Festival!

Help make it a success by signing up at the back of the church to volunteer at the Festival, selling raffle tickets, donating to the silent auction or kids' games, or making a cash donation to sponsor an item, advertising the Festival in your yard, to your friends and family, and at businesses you frequent, and, most importantly, attending the Festival on October 11, 2009!

If you are interested in volunteering for the Festival or have questions, contact one of the 2009 Fall Festival Co-Chairs, Don Martin, 869-3465, or Jennifer Thompson, 721-6603.

Church of the Holy Name Mission Statement

The Church of the Holy Name strives to be a welcoming, engaged and passionate Roman Catholic community.

By the power of the Holy Spirit we inspire and challenge each other to know the Lord and be His disciples through worship, education, and outreach.

Guiding Principles

Community

- Welcome all into our parish community.
- Celebrate each other's unique gifts.

Worship

- Create vibrant and meaningful worship that connects liturgy and life.
- Dedicate ourselves to personal prayer.

Education

- Provide opportunities for all ages to deepen our knowledge and strengthen the foundation of our faith.

Service and Justice

- Provide outreach and seek justice for those in need, both locally and globally.
- Respect all creation as the work of God and treat it with reverence.

Stewardship

- Act as responsible and generous stewards of our time, talent and treasure.

Welcome Visitors - Bienvenidos Visitantes

The Holy Name Catholic Community extends a warm welcome to all. We invite you to sign our visitor book located in the back of church. Contact the Parish Office if you would like more information regarding our parish community or if you would like to become a parishioner.

Registration forms are also available in the back of church.
Please ask a Hospitality Minister to assist you.

We are glad you joined us!

Dear People of Holy Name,

In our culture we give more respect and deference to those who are wealthy. They have a certain clout in public situations. Years ago I was flying back from London and decided to wear a new suit I had just purchased as a way of getting it home. To my surprise, I was bumped up to business class and I am sure the reason was because of the way I was dressed. So it was a bit startling for the high-class business woman next to me on the plane to learn that I was a priest. She didn't believe it at first.

We tend to think that people who have money have it all and quite honestly we envy them. Haven't we all said, "Wouldn't it be nice to have that kind of money?" And we think of the things we would do if we had it. We would do some good things for ourselves, but of course we would also do great things for other people too. I think it is this same desire that sells lottery tickets. We would all like to get 'there,' to have more money than we need.

Our second reading from the Letter of Saint James addresses the distinction we are tempted to make between the haves and the have-nots; how those with money are more deserving of privilege, power and respect. With the Lord all are important and it is those who love the Lord who are the rich, regardless of their financial status. This is one thing I love about the Catholic Church, that when we come to pray we know that no one is more important than another. All the pews are the same and before God one person isn't more powerful than another.

I was attending mass at the Basilica many years ago and I loved looking around and seeing the mix of people. One man in a three piece suite, a woman in African garb, young people casually dressed and people of every age, shape, size, color and social-economic standing, all standing together as one body before the Lord, all united in the one who created all of us to be one family, one church. It felt great. Together we were all rich in the Lord who blessed us.

Our culture also teaches us to seek wealth, position and power, all things that are false in the kingdom of God. We are reminded by the same words of today's second reading that blessing and riches are God's gift to all of us and that we can seek these riches and receive them from God regardless of our social standing. As followers of Christ or perspective changes when it comes to material possessions, it is still great to have things, but we know that our happiness doesn't come from them, but in how we use them and share them with others.

Jesus in the Gospel bestows good health on the deaf man with a speech impediment, a man who was not a Jew, indicating that his blessings are for all people who place their faith in him. Our faith, our willingness to seek the Lord's will, is what makes us rich and it is this perspective that we bring to others through what we say and do. As others can inspire us with their sense of values and goodness, we too can inspire others.

This week we buried Vivian Danneker who was 94 years old. She was rich in goodness and always wore a welcoming smile regardless of the challenges of her life. Her life is an inspiration to all who knew her, especially her family. In the words of a grandson, "Their greatest treasure is being family and being together." For me that is rich, that is blessing, a blessing the Lord holds out to all of us through the family of the Church.

May the Lord continue to bless us and help us know how blessed we are in all that God has already given us, especially the gift to be able to call upon his Name!

In Christ peace, Fr. Leo
